For a calendar of training events, continuing education courses, and other professional development information, visit www.TheAthenaForum.org/learning_community/calendar/all.

Certified Prevention Professional (CPP)

The CPP is a credential for professionals who work in the substance abuse prevention field. As the field of prevention expands, the CPP credential is becoming more in demand. The benefits of the CPP include:

- Establishes professional standards
- Attests to knowledge and skills
- Assists employers in identifying qualified practitioners

More information about the CPP is available from the Prevention Specialist Certification Board of Washington: www.pscbw.com.
